How to draw a daisy

Six small steps for a simple journal doodle. Terracotta lines show what to add; earlier lines stay dark.

1. Start with a center

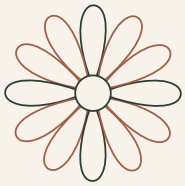

Draw one small circle. Leave room below for the stem.

2. Place four petals

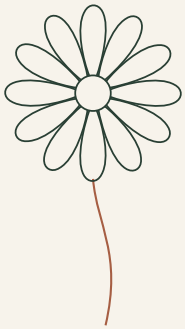

Add a petal at the top, bottom, left and right.

3. Fill the four gaps

Add two petals in each gap. Twelve is our practice count.

4. Draw a curved stem

Start below the lowest petal. Keep one gentle curve.

5. Add two leaves

Attach one leaf to each side at different heights.

6. Add details and color

Add center dots and leaf veins. Yellow and sage are optional.

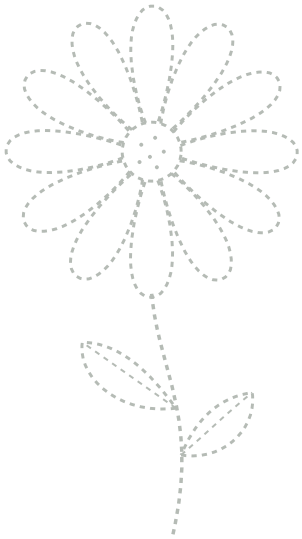

Print at 100% / Actual size. Match the PDF to your paper size.

1 inch / 25.4 mm

A little daisy practice

Trace once, copy once, then draw a small version for a journal corner. Use pencil first if you prefer.

1. Trace the light example

2. Draw your own beside it

3. Give your daisy a home

Try a single flower beside a date or a short note. Keep enough space for your writing.

Today, I noticed...

These are drawing exercises, not cutting templates. Start with one test print.
